Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was agreed to if an agreement was reached, or any other comments: With respect to claim 10, Applicant's representative emphasized that Larsen does not disclose an information modifier as claimed, arguing that Larson merely allows adding of information and does not allow modification of existing data. The examiner indicated that the claimed information modifier is broadly described with functional language, "capable of allowing modification...". Applicant's representative additionally emphasized that modification can be made on the fly, and indicated that she would consider possible amendments to the claim to reflect this difference. Regarding claim 12, applicant's representative emphasized that Pyle fails to teach the claimed feature of a "dispatcher capable of tasking the responding contacts". The examiner indicated that further consideration would be given to this argument. The examiner additionally recommended amending claim 12 to provide a positive recitation of the tasking feature instead of the current functional language. No agreement was reached on patentability.
